

A system, method and user interface for reviewing projects to ensure that specified criteria are met. The criteria may be externally mandated and/or internally required. The system and method utilize a user interface to control the creation of work packages that may be transmitted to suppliers for work to be performed domestically or globally. Uniform documentation and attachments can be created on-line using the interface of the system and method for reviewing projects so that specific benchmarks and reviews are met. Critical reviews may be a made mandatory step in the documentation process.